Independence Day Should Be One of Rededication

By CHAPLAIN PAUL R.

It is a pleasure to write about Independence Day, for I believe that it is the most important day of the year. It is a day of remembrance, a day of thanksgiving, and a day of celebration. It is a day to remember the sacrifices of those who fought for our freedom, and a day to be grateful for the blessings we enjoy today.

On this day, we gather together to honor our country and our heritage. We recite the Declaration of Independence, we sing our national anthem, and we reflect on the values that have made our nation great. We are reminded of the courage and heroism of our forefathers, and we are inspired to strive for excellence in all that we do.

For me, this day is a special time to remember the sacrifices of those who fought for our freedom. It is a time to cherish the blessings we enjoy today and to be grateful for the opportunity to live in a free and prosperous country.

On this day, I urge you to take a moment to reflect on the values that have made our nation great. Let us be proud of our country and of the sacrifices of those who fought for our freedom. Let us be grateful for the opportunity to live in a free and prosperous country.

48-Gun Salute Hails Fourth

A great salute to the Fourth with a flash of light in the sky at Gordon Field. The 48-gun salute was fired at 11:00 p.m. on the Fourth of July.

The salute was fired by the 221st Army Ground Forces Band, stationed at the Infantry School, and by the 101st Airborne Division, stationed at the Human Service Center.

The salute was fired at 11:00 p.m. on the Fourth of July.

For the past 28 years, the Fourth of July has been a day of celebration for the people of the United States. It is a day to remember the sacrifices of those who fought for our freedom, and a day to be grateful for the blessings we enjoy today.

On this day, I urge you to take a moment to reflect on the values that have made our nation great. Let us be proud of our country and of the sacrifices of those who fought for our freedom. Let us be grateful for the opportunity to live in a free and prosperous country.

The Dream That All Men Dream

The dream that all men dream is of a world without war, of a world in peace and plenty, and where we are all brothers. But the dream grows dimly as we wake, and the world is filled with strife and suffering. The dream is a distant memory in the face of reality. The dream is a promise that we all aspire to, but the world seems far away from it.

The dream is a place of peace and beauty, where we are all united in spirit. It is a world where the arts flourish, and where we are all inspired by the beauty of nature. The dream is a place of wonder and joy, where we are all free to explore and to learn. It is a world where we are all equal, and where we are all treated with respect and dignity.

The dream is a place of warmth and love, where we are all loved and cherished. It is a world where we are all supported, and where we are all cared for. The dream is a place of hope and peace, where we are all able to live our lives in harmony with one another. It is a world where we are all able to pursue our dreams, and where we are all able to reach our full potential.

The dream is a world where all men are equal, and where we are all treated with the same respect and dignity. It is a world where we are all able to live in peace and harmony, and where we are all able to achieve our dreams. The dream is a world where we are all able to live in freedom and independence, and where we are all able to create a better future for ourselves and for our children.
4 CMS Employees Buy $1,000 Bonds

Four employees of Fort Benning, as individuals, and as representatives of the American Red Cross, have purchased a total of $1,000 bonds. The bonds were purchased for $250 each, and were purchased through the offices of Mrs. Corliss Archer, who has been assigned to the American Red Cross, in charge of the bond campaign. The employees are:

- Mrs. Corliss Archer
- Mrs. John Craufurd
- Mrs. Mary E. Aldridge
- Mrs. Kate H. Templein

The bonds were purchased from the American Red Cross, and the proceeds will be used to support the war effort. The employees are all active in the bond campaign, and have been working hard to encourage others to purchase bonds. The American Red Cross is a non-profit organization that raises money to support the war effort, and is grateful for the support of these four employees.

Attention GI Swimmers, Boatsmen!

These New Rules Apply to All Water Sports on Post

Pursuant to instructions received from the Commandant of the United States Cadet Command, Fourth Corps Command, the following rules and regulations pertaining to boating and swimming on the post will be in effect starting immediately:

1. No person will be permitted to enter pool unless the guards are on duty during regular swimming hours.
2. No person will enter any pool within an hour after sunset.
3. All halls will be properly attended in bathing suits. The use of transparent bathing suits is permitted.

Chaplain Number One Raider Rooter

The Chaplain of the 14th Infantry Division has this to say about the upcoming game:

"I hope everyone will come out in force to support our boys and cheer them on to victory!"

TONY PISCOLE, youthful Post third-baseman, had a field day at Gowdy on Sunday when he blasted a double to left field, followed by another double down the line, and rapped a triple to left-center. Tony is a true team player and his contributions to the victory over the 14th Inf. are greatly appreciated by his teammates.

Post Combined Maintenance Shops Did Their Bit in Readying Tank Transporters For European Invasion

As part of the 7th Army's drive down under Capt. Frank Williams, Commanding Officer of the 7th Army Combined Maintenance Shops, the 3rd Armored Division, near Cassino, Italy, has begun a drive down to continue the work of supplying the division with the transporters.

The 7th Army Combined Maintenance Shops, which are located in the hills of Italy, have been in operation since the beginning of the war. They have been responsible for the maintenance and repair of the division's vehicles, as well as the provision of spare parts and new equipment.

Under the old system, the division had to depend on the post ordnance for the repair of its vehicles. This system was slow and inefficient, and the division was often unable to get the parts it needed to keep its vehicles in top condition. The 7th Army Combined Maintenance Shops have changed all this.

The shops have been furnished with a large amount of spare parts and new equipment, and they are now able to repair the division's vehicles as quickly and efficiently as possible. The division's commanders are very pleased with the work being done by the shops, and they are looking forward to seeing the division back in action soon.

Chapel Services, Reviews, Dances Mark 4th of July

Two special chapel services were held in the chapel of the Fourth Infantry School on the Fourth of July. The first service was held at 7 a.m. and was conducted by the Chaplain of the Fourth Infantry School. The second service was held at 11 a.m. and was conducted by the Chaplain of the Second Infantry School.

Both services were attended by the members of the Fourth Infantry School and by the members of the Second Infantry School. The services were well attended, and were very moving.

The Fourth Infantry School is located in the hills of Italy, and is responsible for the training of the division's infantrymen. The Second Infantry School is located in the hills of the United States, and is responsible for the training of the division's artillerymen.

In addition to the chapel services, the Fourth Infantry School also held a review on the Fourth of July. The review was attended by the members of the Fourth Infantry School, as well as by the members of the Second Infantry School.

The review was held in the hills of Italy, and was attended by the members of the Fourth Infantry School, as well as by the members of the Second Infantry School.

In addition to the review, the Fourth Infantry School also held a dance on the Fourth of July. The dance was held in the hills of Italy, and was attended by the members of the Fourth Infantry School, as well as by the members of the Second Infantry School.

The dance was well attended, and was very enjoyable. The members of the Fourth Infantry School and the Second Infantry School were all very happy to be able to celebrate the Fourth of July in this way.

British Hindu Rule Shows
Bland Desire to Deal Justly

By MAJ. ALWIN BURCH, M.C. and OBE, the former 2nd division, 2nd Indian Army, in a letter to the editor, states that the British authorities are not in a hurry to deal with the Hindus in India. He says that the Hindus are not demanding any special rights or privileges, and that they are satisfied with the present system of rule. He goes on to say that the Hindus are willing to accept the British rule, and that they do not want any change in the present system. He concludes by saying that the British authorities are not in a hurry to deal with the Hindus, and that they are willing to wait until the Hindus are ready to accept the British rule.

7 Children in Service, Mom Does War Work

"My son is a fighting man," said Mrs. D. T. Smith, "but he's not quite as bad as the rest. He joined up in March, and he's been here ever since. He's a fine young man, and he's doing his best. But it's not easy. We've had to do a lot of work since he went off, and we're not getting paid as much as we used to. But we're trying to make the best of it."
